TURBOFIL PACKAGING MACHINES NAMED U.S. SBA'S 2011 SMALL BUSINESS EXPORTER OF THE YEAR FOR THE NY DISTRICT OFFICE

May 3, 2011, Mount Vernon, NY

At a breakfast on Thursday April 27, 2011, The U.S. Small Business Administration's NY District Office honored TurboFil Packaging Machines with its Exporter of the Year Award. Deborah Smook, VP of Marketing and Business Development and an owner of the company accepted the award.

This award recognized a large sale that TurboFil closed for export of a highly specialized parts assembly project for an Israeli defense contractor, as well as for TurboFil's growing export business. The deposit payments for this sale were financed by TD Bank with the backing of the SBA's Export Working Capital program.

In her acceptance speech, Ms. Smook commented on TurboFil's international success. "TurboFil is an example of the new American manufacturer. We are a small company competing with giants from all over the world and winning sales based on customization and personalized service. We can be competitive internationally because our products demand a high level of technology, engineering and capital to produce."

Co owners Ms. Smook and Eli Uriel have grown TurboFil from a concept to a growing company with 10 employees. Mr. Uriel explained TurboFil's success. "TurboFil's product offering is unique in that we have both the flexibility and the technical expertise to truly customize products to our customers' needs. We have developed a number of proprietary designs focusing on easy changeover and product adaptability that give us an edge in the marketplace."

Toni Corsini, is the Regional Manager, Export Solutions Group, Office of International Trade of the Small Business Administration and assisted TurboFil in obtaining the Export Working Capital assistance. Ms. Corsini said, "TurboFil's success is a lesson to other small companies, that they can expand internationally, gain significant new sales and add or preserve jobs. I am very happy that the SBA Office of International Trade was able to help TurboFil with this accomplishment."
